

BILLY

The year was 2012 and little Billy was very excited about the...

New year ahead. He had gotten everything he had asked Santa for Christmas and so now had a number of new toys to play with. His favourite was his new Nintendo Wii. (I'm changing it from a "wee" story to a "Wii" story.) After spending several hours playing all sorts of interactive sports games, his mother insisted on trying out the Wii fit, as she had a few Christmas kilos to shed.

Billy was very upset as she was on there for a whole three hours. She hadn't cooked dinner, she hadn't washed the dishes from lunch and she hadn't fed the cat, which wouldn't stop meowing as she jumped up and down on her Wii. Billy grabbed his mobile phone and didn't realise he'd picked up his father's phone by mistake. Kids, huh? He pressed auto dial #1 and was shocked to hear the voice of his MOTHER!! Because, let's face it, who else would be #1 on the speed dial of his father's phone? A look of terror passes over Billy's face as he realises that if he has his father's phone, then his father must have Billy's phone.

If his father were to check the messages he might find the lurid exchange Billy had been having with his friend Nigel regarding his 3rd grade teacher, who he had quite a crush on. Billy was aghast at the thought of his parents discovering that he had a crush on a woman, particularly one who he had an obvious crush on his father. Billy could clearly remember the two of them flirting outrageously with each other and now her contact details were on his phone and in his father's possession! Billy took his father's phone and began to dial the number that would trigger his phone's self destruct mechanism. For little did his parents know but, despite being only 7 years old, Billy was quite the inventor! Aside from being able to build such a device inside his phone, he had also cleverly crafted a SPACESHIP!!!

No he hadn't! That would be ridiculous, but he had been working on putting together a device that would zap a person with 100 volts of electricity every time they spelt "ridiculous" incorrectly. The misspelling of that word irked him so, ever since his 3rd grade teacher pointed out his misspelling in front of the whole class. So he triggered the self destruct mechanism and wandered back to play his Wii

The End.